

Privacy Impact Assessment (PIA) Register

Introduction

The Privacy (Australian Government Agencies—Governance) APP Code 2017 (Cth) (the APP Code) requires that all agencies, including the National Library of Australia (the Library) must conduct a Privacy Impact Assessment (PIA) for all high privacy risk projects.

A project may be a high privacy risk project if the Library considers that the project involves any new or changed ways of handling personal information that are likely to have a significant impact on the privacy of individuals.

The Library is also required to conduct a PIA if directed to do so by the Office of the Australian Information Commissioner (OAIC).

The Library is required to maintain a register of all PIAs it conducts and must publish that register, or a version of that register, on its website.

This following PIA register is published in full compliance with the APP Code requirements.

Privacy Impact Assessments undertaken

The Library has undertaken the following PIAs:

Title of project	Short description of project	Date the PIA was made	Responsible Unit
Australian Web Archive	Making the Australian Web Archive accessible for public search through Trove	06/12/2018	National Collections Access

Copies of PIAs may be requested by contacting the Privacy Officer.
